

Easter: What gets you out of bed?

- Why do you do what you do?

The great paradox of our time is that many of us are busy and bored at the same time. While running from one event to the next, we wonder in our innermost selves if anything is really happening. While we can hardly keep up with our many tasks and obligations, we are not so sure that it would make any difference if we did nothing at all. (Henri Nouwen, priest and author)

The greatest use of each day is to spend it for something that outlasts it. (William James, philosopher)

[Americans are] so practical, so confused, so excited, so active, that little time remains for them for thought. (Alex de Tocqueville, French political theorist)

The unexamined life is not worth living. (Socrates, Greek philosopher)

Life is real! Life is earnest! And the grave is not its goal; "Dust thou art, to dust returneth," was not spoken of the soul. (Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, poet)

Surely God would not have created such a being as man to exist only for a day! No, no, man was made for immortality. (Abraham Lincoln, 16th U.S. president)

- Could the message of Easter help provide the answer?

"It is written: 'I believed; therefore I have spoken.' With that same spirit of faith, we also believe and therefore speak, because we know that the one who raised the Lord Jesus from the dead will also raise us with Jesus." (2Cor 4:13-14)

My supreme purpose is to please God and to share the light He has given me with others. (George Washington, 1st U.S. President)

O Lord, you have made us for yourself, and our hearts are restless until they find their rest in Thee. (Augustine, bishop of Hippo)

Easter: What gets you out of bed?

- Why do you do what you do?

The great paradox of our time is that many of us are busy and bored at the same time. While running from one event to the next, we wonder in our innermost selves if anything is really happening. While we can hardly keep up with our many tasks and obligations, we are not so sure that it would make any difference if we did nothing at all. (Henri Nouwen, priest and author)

The greatest use of each day is to spend it for something that outlasts it. (William James, philosopher)

[Americans are] so practical, so confused, so excited, so active, that little time remains for them for thought. (Alex de Tocqueville, French political theorist)

The unexamined life is not worth living. (Socrates, Greek philosopher)

Life is real! Life is earnest! And the grave is not its goal; "Dust thou art, to dust returneth," was not spoken of the soul. (Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, poet)

Surely God would not have created such a being as man to exist only for a day! No, no, man was made for immortality. (Abraham Lincoln, 16th U.S. president)

- Could the message of Easter help provide the answer?

"It is written: 'I believed; therefore I have spoken.' With that same spirit of faith, we also believe and therefore speak, because we know that the one who raised the Lord Jesus from the dead will also raise us with Jesus." (2Cor 4:13-14)

My supreme purpose is to please God and to share the light He has given me with others. (George Washington, 1st U.S. President)

O Lord, you have made us for yourself, and our hearts are restless until they find their rest in Thee. (Augustine, bishop of Hippo)